

AN ARTIST'S GLIMPSE OF BROAD ST. LOOKING EAST.

This interesting sketch by Artist Bailey of Broad Street, gives a familiar view of the beautiful Mason Library, as well as the stately tower of the First Presbyterian Church.

From this angle it has always been most difficult for either photographer or artist, to obtain a good picture, of these two beautiful buildings combined, on account of the tremendous height of the church tower; and, when taken further down the street in either direction the Library building is lost to view.

This immediate neighborhood is no doubt one of the most picturesque in Stamford, and the drawing plainly shows us, that there are still many shade trees left in the heart of our city, which has always given Stamford its decided New England charm.
